

My husband and I strongly oppose border tolls in Connecticut. Border tolls would discriminate against Connecticut residents who live near a state line.

As a senior citizen who lived in Greenwich (along the NY border) until moving to Sherman (also along the NY border) I paid tolls on a daily basis using I95 or the Merritt Parkway to get to my place of employment. Reinstating border tolls would be more of the same. Also, businesses along the borders would be impacted by loss of customers who will not want to travel to the stores if they must pay a toll.

In addition, tolls are taxes, and we are overtaxed already!

Since Connecticut changed liquor laws so that residents who live near a state line would not as readily cross the border to obtain alcohol, why now reintroduce tolls that would impact the same citizens?
